MAN OF FAME IN TOWN

Ex-Governor Waite of Colorado Expresses Himself.

HE IS A POPULIST ALL OVER

With Both Feet Squarely on the Omaha Platform, He Declares Himself First, Last and Always for His Party.

Butte, June 12.—Ex-Governor Davis H. Waite, the noted populist ex-executive of Colorado and of blood and bridle fame, arrived in the city this morning from Denver and will deliver an address at the opera house to-morrow afternoon. The governor is an agreeable old gentleman and an agreeable talker on populist theories, to which he almost entirely confined his conversation in an interview he granted a standard reporter this afternoon. He had little faith in any theory, scheme, plan or promise, and if a question from the interviewer tended to lead him beyond the Omaha platform, his answer was sure to bring him back again. In answer to the most natural question as to the prospects for the restoration of silver, he said: "I see nothing particularly favorable for silver at present. The republicans are going to take the bull by the horns and nominate a goldbug candidate, and the party will stand by him. There are many silver men in the republican party and a few of them will leave it if a goldbug candidate is nominated, but many of them will not, although they have said they would; but I don't believe that such men as Teller and Wolcott will abandon the party. They had lied so often that I don't believe a thing they say."

"The democratic party will do no better. Bland says he will not support a goldbug nominee, but he opposes the Sibley and Warner movement and says he proposes to work for silver in the democratic party. The democrats in Colorado, what few there are left, talk the same way. The leading politicians in both the republican and democratic parties in Colorado claim that they are for free silver and yet they really don't want it. Such men as Eddy, James, Moffett, Cheesman, Adams, Charlie Thomas and other moneyed men of both parties are satisfied with the single gold standard. They are buying up valuable property for a song under foreclosure of mortgages and are profiting by a gold standard. Within the past six weeks the Denver opera house, which was built at a cost of $250,000, was sold under a foreclosure for $125,000. In Pueblo the board of trade put $180,000 into a building and it was sold for $22,000. That is the way the people are paying off their debts in Colorado, and times are daily getting worse instead of better."

"If free coinage will come at all it will have to come through the populist party. It is the only party which stands squarely on the question, and it is consistent. In the 18 months before election this will become better understood, and those who want silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 will see that they must support the populist party to get it. But we may not get it. The people may not yet be oppressed sufficiently to have their eyes open, but they are studying this question as they have never done before."

"The Memphis convention and the position taken by Carlisle and Cleveland demonstrate that the national democratic convention cannot be controlled by the silver men. There are thousands and thousands of democrats who now say they want free silver, and they will work for it up to and on the day of the convention, but if the convention sits down on them they are going to submit and the break from the conventional position will not carry many votes with it."

"If the democratic party should nominate a free silver candidate on a populist platform would you, as a populist, support him?" the governor was asked.

"I stand upon the platform formulated at Omaha and shall stand upon it until it is changed or amended in convention. I am not in favor of any independent movement. We have a national party and I see no sense in abandoning it. At the last election we polled nearly 2,000,000 votes. Besides, I believe there are other issues than the silver question. We are also in favor of a complete change in the whole financial system. Our entire indebtedness, national, state, municipal, corporate and individual, is one of the greatest burdens the property values in the present depressed state, and the interest we are paying is greater than the net proceeds of every part of production in the United States. We only get along from year to year by giving new mortgages, trust deeds and other evidences of indebtedness, and that game has no limit; we can't play it eternally. Unless that system is changed there is no salvation for the country, and silver alone will not make the necessary change."

"The governor stopped a moment and the reporter took advantage to ask him what he proposed as a remedy for the ills he complained of."

"The Omaha platform," was the reply, "with several important additions. The Omaha platform covers a multitude of ills," suggested the reporter.

"Yes, the remedies lie in the declaration of a national question, taxation and transportation. The right to issue money has got to be taken away from the banks and must be given to the people. The government alone has the right to issue money, and it should throw open the mints to the free coinage of gold and silver, and that should be supplemented by the issue of greenbacks or treasury notes in an amount necessary to meet the demand. By the national banking system bankers are enabled to loan money on their debts. The paper money system involves the principles that the who issues it as money shall virtually draw interest on it, and therefore the government only is the proper party to get the benefit which now is enjoyed by the bankers, and is the cause of the concentration of all the wealth in the country."

"The question of transportation is another evil that needs attention as badly as the silver question. The power of railroads to grant discrimination rates must be taken away from them. The United States courts have decided that such discrimination is unlawful, but still it is done, and the power must be taken away and given to the government to control, the same as it does the postoffice system. There is only one place where a Vanderbilt and a pauper are on a par, and that is when they buy a postage stamp. There can be no property where A is required to pay a certain transportation and B gets the same for half price."

"Then there is the land question, another vital issue. The public lands of the United States are rapidly going into the hands of aliens. I read only the other day that one quarter of all the lands in the state of Illinois was owned by foreigners. The rights of aliens to hold lands in the United States should be taken away, and the lands donated to the railroads should be restored to the people."

"The governor drifted to the income tax question, and said he was in favor of such a tax and believed it was constitutional, notwithstanding the decision of the supreme court. 'But as they had the last guess at it, we must abide by the decision until it is reversed. In our mind the income tax, laws should be passed by all the states to exempt homesteads in value, say up to $1,000, from taxation and incumbrances of any kind, and the matter how dishonestly obtained, nor confiscate anything, but it demands a change in conditions so that a laboring man can make more than a bare living and the producer can sell his products for more than the bare cost of production. The populist party is the only party that has ever taken a position on these questions.'"

"The governor was enticed from the Omaha platform long enough to give his opinion regarding some democratic and republican candidates for the presidency. He did not think there was anything serious in the mention of Cleveland's name for a third term. The democratic party, he thought, would not be foolish enough to nominate him. 'Harrison, Reed or McKim in arm,' he declared. 'The latter, I said, he would be satisfactory to Wall street,' said he. 'They are all mono-metallicists, and I would not be at all surprised to see the moneyed power of the democratic party go over and support the republican ticket.'"

"What do you think of the present Memphis silver convention and the democratic silver movement in Illinois?"

"I look for nothing in particular from the Memphis convention. The democrats of Illinois don't mean to bolt, but they hope to swing the party. If they cannot do that they will take their medicine. It will be impossible for the silver men to muster a two-thirds vote in the national democratic convention. That two-thirds rule was in force since 1844, and it was that proposition at that time that defeated Van Buren for the nomination. The statute of limitation might be pleaded against any attempt to change the rule."

"The governor talked entertainingly about cattle, sheep and gold and expressed the belief that in the latter product Colorado would reach $20,000,000, an increase of $8,000,000 over last year, and lead all other states. He also touched on Colorado politics in general and his defeat for reelection for governor last fall. 'The Illinois said that to his administration had been charged all the ills that had befallen the country and the people of Colorado were told that his defeat would restore only to the state, but to the whole country, and this was pounded into the people so hard that many believed it and clamored for a change, and they got it, together with silvering hair times. The campaign brought out some startling combinations according to the governor's statements. 'The A. P. A.'s and Catholics marched to the polls arm in arm,' he declared. 'The Hungarians and the Mexicans were polled together. The church and gamblers, the W. C. T. U. and the prostitutes, the hired girls and the drawing room ladies, all worked harmoniously together for the republican ticket and to defeat me, and of the 18,000 majority against me, Denver polled 17,000. Of these 10,000 were fraudulent and 15,000 were democratic votes.'"

"The governor said he knew that at the next election the populists would wipe the earth up with the other two parties in Colorado."

FORM AN ALLIANCE

Mr. Merrill Believes That Should be the First Move.

THE MEMPHIS CONVENTION

He is Sorry He Cannot Attend, But Says There Are Many Good Men in the Delegation—His Silver Party Views.

Butte, June 12.—Hon. Thomas G. Merrill arrived in the city this morning on his return home from Denver, where he attended a meeting of the committee on organization of the bimetallic union. The first thing he did upon his arrival in Butte was to send the following self-explanatory telegram in reply to one from General Warner:

Butte, Mont., June 12.—To General A. J. Warner, care Silver Convention, Memphis, Tenn.: It is of vital importance that an offensive and defensive alliance between the West and South for bimetallic union be formed at Memphis. THOMAS G. MERRILL.

"It is the only thing to do," said Mr. Merrill to a standard reporter, "for the hope of silver lies in such an alliance."

Mr. Merrill had expected to attend the Memphis convention and had an appointment to meet General Warner there, but was called back by a telegram announcing sickness in his family at Helena.

"It is a great disappointment to me," he said, "that I cannot be at the convention, but a number of good men have gone from the Western states and filled with enthusiasm for the movement of an alliance between the West and South."

"The work inaugurated by the Salt Lake convention is already bearing good fruit. On last Friday Colorado organized a state bimetallic union with good, energetic officers at its head. William N. Byers was elected president, Charles S. Thomas first vice president, Earl B. Cox second vice president, Mary C. C. Bradford secretary and C. D. Gurley treasurer. The bimetallic union and the bimetallic league in entire accord, and are working together in perfect harmony and with a mutual understanding of the work to be done. One organization is supplementing the work of the other, for the end to be accomplished is the object and not the means. The end is all important."

"The bimetallic union now has applications from 14 states east of Colorado for admission into the union, among them being Tennessee, North Dakota, Alabama, Michigan, Arkansas, Minnesota, Louisiana, Kentucky, Missouri, and others. The committee on plans of organization, of which I am chairman, completed its report, but has not yet been accepted by the executive committee, but a meeting for that purpose will be called for about June 20."

"The report of the committee on plans of organization for local unions provides first that the National Bimetallic union shall be composed of an executive committee consisting of one member from each state or territory in which the union exists; second, that local unions shall at their first annual meeting elect one of their number as a member of the county executive committee. Each executive committee shall at their first annual meeting elect one of their number as a member of the state executive committee. Each state executive committee shall have supervision of all the affairs of the local unions in their respective states or territories, subject to the approval of the national executive committee. The report also sets forth a form of constitution and by-laws for local unions, whose objects shall be the education of the voters of the United States upon the true principles of bimetallicism, by the purchase and distribution of approved bimetallic literature and such other means as may be expedient. Any person may become a member of the union by signing a declaration of principles and pledge that 'We believe that the free coinage of both gold and silver as it existed prior to 1873, at the ratio of 16 to 1, is essential to the permanent prosperity of the American people, and we hereby pledge ourselves to use our most earnest efforts for the immediate restoration of silver to its place as money of the United States, without regard to the policy of any other nation.'"

As soon as local unions are organized they should select committees of the most earnest and successful workers to circulate subscription papers throughout their entire communities, and by other efforts to procure money to conduct this campaign. The committee recommends that subscriptions be made in monthly payments, which shall continue until November, 1896. The money so raised will be required for the purchase and distribution of pure bimetallic literature and will be readily understood, comprehensive and unanswerable, and which will thoroughly educate the people on this burning question of the day, also for such expenses as may be necessary to prosecute this work in the most successful manner. Of the money so raised one-third should be judiciously expended by the local unions which procure it, one-third should be sent to the treasurer of the state bimetallic union, in which state the union is located, the remaining one-third should be forwarded to the treasurer of the national bimetallic union, keeping in mind that the sole object of raising this money is to educate the voters of this nation, so that we may secure the full restoration of silver by the United States to the position it occupied prior to 1873, independent of the action of any other nation, which can best be accomplished by the distribution of approved bimetallic literature."

"As soon as the report is approved, and if Montana then desires to organize under the union, the state committee, composed of Clark, F. E. Sargeant of Butte, W. M. Bickford of Missoula, A. M. Holter of Helena, John R. Toole of Anaconda, O. P. Chisholm of Bozeman, Dr. A. H. Mitchell of Deer Lodge, O. F. Goddard of Billings, and J. T. Armstrong of Montana, should meet and select the best men in each county to take charge of the local organization. Of course, as I said before, if it is not desirable to organize under the present moment, then let the needed work be done through some other plan or organization, just so that it is done."

In a Denver interview Mr. Merrill is quoted as follows: "I have been a republican all my life, but I am a silver man first. I cannot say that I am in favor of the organization of an independent silver party as such at the present moment. The people are not sufficiently prepared for it, but I do believe that, with the carrying out of the system of education that the bimetallic union proposes, by November, 1896, the voters of the country will have been so educated on the silver question that we will be able to carry three-fourths of the country with us. Party lines never lay so lightly on the people as they do in the present times, and a new party, a distinctively silver party, will take care of itself when the people thoroughly understand the question. I am a republican, and when the time comes in my state, will work to have the delegates to the national republican convention next year instructed to withdraw from the convention unless a 16 to 1 free coinage, by this country, platform is adopted and a man is nominated for the presidency whose past record will insure an administration in accord with that platform. If the republican party fails, I would never cast another vote with more pleasure than for a democratic nominee pledged to silver on a free coinage platform."
